India Tiger Photo Expedition — Ranthambore 2025

The World's Best Chance to Photograph Wild Tigers—Plus the Taj Mahal

Arresting the gaze of a wild Bengal tiger is one of the most coveted images a nature photographer can pursue. And our India Tiger Photo Expedition offers the best possible odds for attaining this rare opportunity. In the renowned tiger enclave of Ranthambore National Park, when the Indian spring moves toward the hotter months, animals anticipate the monsoon that is still weeks away. During the heat of the day, tigers seek shelter from the often-oppressive heat, but they must feed and drink, moving from the dry underbrush into the open to water at least twice a day. While there are fewer visitors to India's tiger reserves in late spring and early summer, it is typically the best time of year to see and photograph wild animals. Along with its famous tigers, Ranthambore is home to sloth bear, caracal, jackal, striped hyena, desert fox, mongoose, peacocks and much more—an extravaganza for wildlife photographers! Add cultural highlights including Jaipur and the Taj Mahal, and you've got an India photo expedition that's second to none.

Trip Highlights

Visit Ranthambore National Park at the best time of year for tiger sightings, as warmer weather draws tigers into the open in search of water

Along with our focus on tigers, you'll shoot in a leopard reserve, on rickshaw rides through Old Delhi and the Pink City of Jaipur, and at sunrise and sunset at the Taj Mahal

Just six guests total (and only two per safari vehicle) travel with Expedition Leaders who are tiger experts, superb interpreters and photography pros

India Tiger Photo Expedition — Ranthambore 2025 Itinerary

Day 1: New Delhi, India

Arrive in New Delhi, where you are met at the airport and transferred to the Taj Mahal Hotel. One of the most distinguished addresses in the city's diplomatic district, this landmark luxury hotel provides a comfortable respite after your travels. The evening is at leisure with dinner on your own—try one of the hotel's fine restaurants, or inquire with the concierge for nearby suggestions.

Day 2: Photographing Delhi Old & New

India's thriving capital offers a captivating introduction to the country and its cultures, in vivid counterpoint to the wild places that lie ahead. There are two distinct sections of the city—ancient, bustling Old Delhi, and neatly designed New Delhi, founded in 1911 by the British at the height of their empire. A half-day tour, timed to avoid the heat of midday, offers countless photography opportunities as we explore centuries of Old Delhi's complex, multi-layered history. A rickshaw ride provides a fitting overview, while a guided walk through the narrow lanes and bustling Chandni Chowk Market offers a close-up encounter with everyday commerce in the old city.

We tour the architectural treasure of Jama Masjid, India's largest mosque and the magnum opus of Mughal Emperor Shah Jahan. Completed in 1656 by more than 5,000 laborers, the grand edifice features alternating vertical strips of red sandstone and white marble, with a vast inner courtyard that can hold 25,000 people. We also visit Bangla Sahib, one of the country's most revered Sikh temples. The complex is associated with Guru Har Krishan and includes the main temple, a school, a sacred water tank and a large community kitchen that generously prepares over 10,000 free meals each day, known as langar, all cooked by volunteers using donated ingredients from Sikh farmers. This evening, join our Expedition Leader for a welcome dinner and orientation to all the photography adventures that lie ahead.

Day 3: Jaipur—Jhalana Leopard Safari

Depart Delhi this morning to transfer by road to Jaipur, Rajasthan's "Pink City" of sandstone. The fabled capital, inscribed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2020, is surrounded on all sides by rugged hills, crowned with forts and enclosed by embattled walls, all of which will make enticing photography subjects during our stay.

Arriving at the Jai Mahal Palace Hotel, enjoy lunch and time to rest or relax before an afternoon safari in Jhalana Leopard Reserve. This conservation-focused park within the city's bounds was once a hunting grounds for the royal families of Jaipur. India's first leopard reserve, it was opened to the public for wildlife viewing in 2016. In addition to 30 resident leopards, the park is also home to striped hyena, Indian civet, jungle cats, desert fox jackal, porcupine, mongoose, monitor lizard, Sambar deer, spotted deer (chital), blue bull (nilgai) and prolific birdlife. Spot wildlife and survey the Aravali Hills from Shikar Audi, a former hunting lodge for the maharajahs in the middle of the reserve, which is topped with animal-spotting platform. We spend the night in Jaipur.

Day 4: Jaipur—City Tour / Ranthambore National Park

With its flamboyant display of Rajasthani architecture, Jaipur is a visual delight, offering endless photography opportunities. We survey it on a morning open rickshaw tour, beginning when the air is cooler and the streets less crowded. Jaipur's sprawling bazaars draw locals arriving in their own rickshaws and camel-drawn carts, shopping for a dazzling array of goods, from carpets and camel leather bags to precious stones and textiles. Bags of spices perfume the air, and huge metal pots simmer with pungent curries. Our tour includes a visit to the striking red and pink sandstone Hawa Mahal—the Palace of the Winds—featuring a grand, intricate facade. Govind Dev Ji temple, at the heart of the city palace complex, is another highlight. Devoted to Lord Krishna, the Hindu temple is one of the most important religious and cultural sites in the daily lives of the locals. We take a short walk through the palace garden to reach the busy farmers market and flower market where turbaned traders sell sacks of roses and marigolds. Stopping at a famous tea shop, we enjoy a taste of Jaipur's famous cardamom tea. Our city tour concludes at the majestic entrance to the Albert Hall Museum, built during the British Raj in the 1870s to welcome the Prince of Wales.

Leaving Jaipur, continue by road to Ranthambore National Park. On arrival, we check in to luxurious 5-star hotel inspired by the region's colonial past. Spend the next five nights surrounded by tranquil gardens, forest and grasslands that are the domain of the Bengal tiger, staying in utmost comfort with excellent proximity to the park. Once the hunting grounds of the Maharajas of Jaipur, today Ranthambore National Park is one of India's top conservation success stories. With tiger numbers steadily on the rise, it offers India's best opportunity to observe and photograph them in the wild, especially at this dry time of year when vegetation is sparse and tigers more readily visible. The park sits between the rugged Aravali and Vindhya hills, a broad swath of jungle scrub bordered by steep, rocky ridges and highland plateaus dotted with lakes. More than 300 different plant species grow here, though the environs are largely dry deciduous forest—and that means it's easier to spot tigers and other wildlife, in contrast to places where the understory is lush. This afternoon, we make our first foray into the park. Covering 150 square miles, Ranthambore is one of India's largest nature reserves, and certainly among its most famous, given its reputation for excellent tiger viewing prospects. While tigers are always elusive, the odds of seeing them are high in Ranthambore, especially at the time of year we visit.

Days 5–9: Tiger & Wildlife Photography in Ranthambore National Park

Our daily safari drives take place early in the morning and late afternoon, when temperatures are relatively cooler, wildlife is more active and light conditions are better for photography. We head out in 4x4 vehicles before sunrise each morning, eager for the day's discoveries. In contrast to an African safari where wildlife is often on display before us, India's animals take more effort to find. Tigers typically take shelter under the cover of trees and bushes, hiding from their prey and seeking relief from the heat. Because their stripes provide excellent camouflage, we have to work hard to locate them. But our Expedition Leader, park guides and drivers are seasoned pros, and we follow their lead, listening for sounds and watching for signs that may reveal a tiger's location: rustling grass, deer racing away from its presence, monkeys sounding alarm calls, birds circling overhead. While tigers are our main focus, other wildlife is also plentiful in the park. Sightings may include spotted deer, nilgai, jackal, jungle cat, sloth bear, sambar, chinkara gazelle, wild boar, langur monkeys and rhesus macaques. Ranthambore is also home to a notable leopard population, although they tend to stay in higher, more inaccessible areas and are not frequently visible. Birds flourish here, too, with more than 300 species in the reserve. Keep an eye out for crested serpent eagles, paradise flycatchers, painted storks, peacocks and many more.

In the middle of the day, return to the comfort of our 5-star hotel for lunch and to relax, visit the award-winning spa, or cool off in the swimming pool. We'll also visit the Ranthambore School of Art, and Dhonk, a local handicraft training institute. An option for guests who wish, in lieu of a wildlife drive, is a visit to Ranthambore Fort, which lies within the park bounds. Standing atop a 700-foot-tall hill, this UNESCO World Heritage Site was built in the 10th century and eventually captured by the Delhi Sultanate in the 13th century, then changing hands among various warring kings, sultans and emperors over subsequent centuries. Affording a spectacular panoramic view over the vastness of the park, the fort is a worthy site for photographers.

Day 10: Agra—Agra Fort & Taj Mahal at Sunset

This morning a private van picks us up at our hotel for the drive to Agra, which attained fame as the capital of the Mughal empire during the 16th and 17th centuries. It flourished under a series of emperors who attracted artisans from Persia and central Asia, and the city is still famous for its handicrafts such as inlay work on marble, woven carpets, jewelry, zari and embroidery. Yet it is Agra's architectural monuments that draw the greatest renown. After checking in to our hotel, we'll tour the magnificent Agra Fort this afternoon. The fort, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, was the locus of Mughal power until the imperial capital was moved to Delhi in 1637. Photograph its maze of courtyards, mosques and luxurious private chambers that capture the wealth and prestige of the empire during its heyday.

We then head to the Taj Mahal to photograph this celebrated monument to love in the golden light of sunset. Begun in 1631 by Emperor Shah Jahan as a memorial to his beloved wife, the Taj Mahal manifests the apex of Mughal art in its exquisite design details and elaborate gardens. Standing regally on the banks of the River Yamuna, the Taj Mahal took 22 years to complete with the labor of 20,000 men and a thousand elephants. It is considered one of the seven wonders of the modern world.

Day 11: Taj Mahal Sunrise Photo Shoot / Delhi / Depart

Rise in the dark this morning to photograph the Taj Mahal in the ethereal light of dawn, followed by a guided sightseeing tour of the monument and grounds. To experience the sunrise at the Taj Mahal is magical, when the translucent white marble glows rosy-pink in the morning rays and photography conditions are usually superb (weather permitting). An icon to romance, the Taj Mahal has captivated the imaginations of travelers and writers since its completion in 1653. After breakfast we drive back to Delhi, where a private overnight room has been reserved. Later tonight, transfer to Delhi's international airport for overnight flights home. As our India photo safari comes to a close, we share the observation of Keith Bellows, Vice President of the National Geographic Society, who said, "I had been seeing the world in black & white and, when brought face-to-face with India, experienced everything re-rendered in brilliant technicolor."

We Help You Get the Tiger Shots You Covet

When you travel to India with Nat Hab to get those tiger shots of a lifetime, our Expedition Leader is by your side, ready with professional coaching and tips to help you get the photos you've dreamed of. Read on about what sets this special photo safari apart:

1 A Tiger-Intensive Photo Safari

For those in search of the world's best odds to photograph tigers in the wild, this is your trip. Ranthambore National Park in eastern Rajasthan is legendary tiger country, and our tiger-intensive itinerary gives you 5-1/2 days on safari here, to maximize your chances of going home with the tiger images you have dreamed of.

2 The Best Location, at the Best Time of Year, for Tiger Photography

Though it's hot when we visit, this increases our chances of seeing tigers, since they must emerge from shade and seclusion in the underbrush in order to drink water twice daily. Our best opportunity to photograph them will be at these waterholes. Other wildlife must also come out in search of water, and we're likely to have excellent chances to photograph a wide array of native species.

3 Six Guests Total—Just Two Photographers Per Safari Vehicle

You won't find a smaller group! Limited to six, with just two travelers and a driver-guide in our open-sided safari vehicles, you'll have a quiet presence and unimpeded access for photography. There's also room to carry all your gear comfortably, and flexibility to adapt to changing conditions (light, weather, animal movements) in order to maximize photo opportunities.

4 Shoot Alongside an Outstanding Wildlife Photographer

Our Photo Expedition Leaders are not only top naturalist guides but also accomplished photographers by your side with coaching and tips to help you get the tiger photos you've dreamed of. Your guide understands tiger behavior, movement patterns and how to locate them in their natural habitat. The interpretive experience goes hand in hand with the best photo opportunities, and you're assured of both on this unsurpassed expedition—key elements to helping you capture the images you covet. While our guests on this safari will be accomplished photographers in their own right, you'll benefit from the location-specific skills and experience of your guide, who will help you capitalize on all the shooting possibilities.

5 Retreat and Refresh with Superb Accommodations

After intensive photography time in the field in often-hot temperatures, it can be a relief to return to air-conditioned luxury rooms right on the edge of the park. And given that we like to start as early as possible and linger as long as we can, there are distinct advantages to such proximity—including the opportunity for a midday rest during the heat of the day. Our deluxe tented accommodations are just outside the park, offering exceptional convenience.

6 Wildlife Is Our Focus, But We Don't Omit History & Culture

While the heart of this adventure is a tiger-intensive safari, with multiple days devoted to wildlife photography (including a leopard reserve), we also include other dimensions of India sure to captivate photographers, including the storied Taj Mahal, the pink sandstone city of Jaipur, and a half-day tour of Delhi, India's vibrant capital. India's wealth of cultural treasures and engaging human interactions provides an interesting photographic complement to the vast, wild expanse of Ranthambore that is our primary focus.

7 Sunrise and Sunset Photography Sessions at the Taj Mahal

No photographer wants to leave India without a chance to capture its most famous cultural icon in the pink light of sunrise. We make two unhurried visits to the Taj Mahal to capitalize on the best light, at sunset and again at dawn, when the first rays of the sun illumine the gleaming white marble facade.

8 Our Presence Directly Helps Protect Tigers

After years of precipitously declining tiger numbers, India is charting steady increases. Its 2022 quadrennial tiger census counted 3,682 tigers, up from 2,967 in 2018, an annual rise of 6%. Conservation groups attribute a share of the increase to responsible ecotourism. The economic value of visitors to India's tiger reserves benefits local communities, offering people an incentive to protect the wildlife they share the land with. Given that India is home to 75% of the world's remaining wild tigers, our presence here for wildlife tourism here is integral to that continued success.

Physical Requirements

Easy to Moderate

In order to participate in this trip, you must be able to walk unassisted (without the use of walking aids) at a steady pace for two miles over uneven terrain, climb a short ladder to get into and out of our safari vehicles, climb multiple stairs at the Taj Mahal and Agra Fort, and tolerate daily excursions in extremely hot conditions. Although we generally avoid the hottest part of the day during our outings, note that temperatures can be very high and may exceed 110°F. Activities include city walking tours that could be as long as three miles in total, walking with luggage through a crowded airport and train stations, and walking on sometimes dark and uneven paths at our accommodations. Wildlife drives in the park take place on very rough and bumpy dirt roads with many ruts and potholes, in extremely dusty conditions. Travelers with back problems or other health issues that could be exacerbated by such conditions should take this into consideration. The trip also involves very early morning starts (before dawn) and long days filled with activities, which can be very tiring, especially in the heat.

Important Information About This Trip

Wildlife Encounters

Most of our guests travel to India to encounter the country's wildlife. While nature experiences in India are indeed outstanding, there is a fundamental difference between a safari in the Indian jungle and a typical African safari. At times, guests lured to India by tourist brochures promising "tiger safaris" can be disappointed to see fewer animals than they expected, or at least fewer than they might normally expect to see in Africa. It is not that India's surviving jungle habitat is thinly populated with wildlife, but, similarly to places like Costa Rica where the forest vegetation is very dense, animals have mastered the art of camouflage and can be difficult to spot, even during the summer season when foliage is thinner.

That said, we have carefully designed our India itinerary to capitalize on the best conditions to spot and photograph tigers. We don't think you'll find a better opportunity to maximize your chance to photograph tigers than this trip affords. But various factors can affect potential sightings, including inclement weather, which creates small pockets of water that allow the animals to remain hidden in the forest, rather than being forced into the open to frequent waterholes. The secret to a successful Indian nature adventure lies with the expertise of our Expedition Leaders and park rangers, as well as your knowing what to expect as a traveler, and in understanding that the privilege of stepping into a wild and untouched natural realm is a reward in itself.

Safari Vehicle Routes

Rather different than in nearly every other country we travel to, in India the driving routes in national parks are pre-assigned and must be followed. In most parks this is generally not a problem, but when searching for tigers, this can be frustrating as they simply may not be visible on a given route on a given day. There are five different driving routes inside Ranthambore National Park, and our hope is that we are able to utilize different routes on different days. For three of our safari days, the park service will allocate routes at random for each vehicle. We understand that the main purpose of your journey is to photograph tigers, but please understand that there is a chance on these days that the vehicle to which you are assigned could take the same route multiple times. However, on two days, we have secured special half-day safari permits that will allow us more time in the park along with flexible access between zones, allowing us to move freely during our drives.

Also, on rare occasions, you may see film crews during your time inside the park. These crews have special permits in order to film inside park boundaries and, as a result, they do enjoy certain advantages that a regular tourist does not, such as spending the entire day inside the park and having access to places where others cannot go. Please know that while there are indeed limiting factors to the tiger-viewing experience in India, we have taken great pains to ensure that this special India tiger safari provides the very best viewing and photography opportunities possible.

Mandatory Insurance

Since the areas we travel to are remote and wild (that's why we go there!), we require that all guests have, at minimum, medical evacuation insurance for this program. This is for the safety of all guests. We require that your chosen independent insurance plan includes at least $250,000 in medical evacuation coverage.

To protect your investment and to provide peace of mind while you travel, we also strongly recommend purchasing comprehensive travel insurance. Plans may cover everything from medical treatment to trip cancellations and delays and lost luggage. Please contact our office if you would like more information about the medical evacuation and comprehensive travel insurance policies we offer by calling 800-543-8917.

Getting There & Getting Home

Arrive in Delhi at any time on Day 1 of the itinerary. You are free to depart Delhi anytime after 8 pm on the final day.

We can best serve you if our Natural Habitat Adventures Travel Desk makes your reservations, as we are intimately familiar with the special requirements of this program and can arrange the most efficient travel.
